Subject: 調査経過報告 “Discrepancy”

The target PC completed the Job Extend and achieved its 3rd form..

Since the PC was already hit by a data drain,
this is the second time it's reached the 3rd form.

Its terrifying appearance was an accidental product of the Job Extend program's procedural superficial modification routine, but perhaps it was a happy accident—it embodies the "Terror of Death" perfectly.

On the exterior, it appears that there is no difference between Haseo's second achievement of the 3rd Form Adept Rogue and his first, but on closer inspection there is a major distinction.

The size of his PC data.

When compared to the data on Haseo's first PC, the data has nearly doubled.

Since the data of Epitaph PCs are heavily encrypted, they are impossible to analyze. However, this is not the result of technological fallbacks or the need for more detailed meters.

I have hypothesized that the density difference is a result of two overlapping PCs.

I will need to further observe the situation to confirm this hypothesis.

Haseo.

Jobextention 3rd form.

Is this increase in attack value due to the power of the Epitaph?

This increase in the values is observed.
Considering the World-eye scenario,

Subject: 調査経過報告 “Factor”

The World R:1.

Once the group known as the “.hackers” defeated the Eight Phases, their data was dissipated into the Net. That dissipated data later latched on to PCs made in The World R:2 that showed potential, and thus the Epitaph Users were born.

The 1st Phase:

The Terror of Death

The 3rd Phase:

The Propagation

The 5th Phase:

The Machinator

The 7th Phase:

The Avenger

The 2nd Phase:

The Mirage of Deceit

The 4th Phase:

The Prophet

The 6th Phase:

The Temptress

The 8th Phase:

The Rebirth

Currently, every Epitaph User has been confirmed to be involved with the events surrounding The World R:1 in some way.

Regarding Misaki Ryou, who commands the First Phase, "The Terror of Death..."

There is one concrete piece of information I would like to present: During The World R:1's service, he commanded a Twin Blade PC known as Sora.

"Sora" was an addict of The World. He used his high-level PC to hunt down players and PK them.

However, one day, he suddenly stopped playing the game.

To be more precise, his account was deleted and disappeared from the game world.

During this period, the real life Misaki Ryou was hospitalized and unconscious for one month.

Upon his recovery, he lost all memory of ever playing The World.

His parents disposed of any equipment relating to The World while he was unconscious, and it could be said that the memory of “Sora” was completely erased from his life.

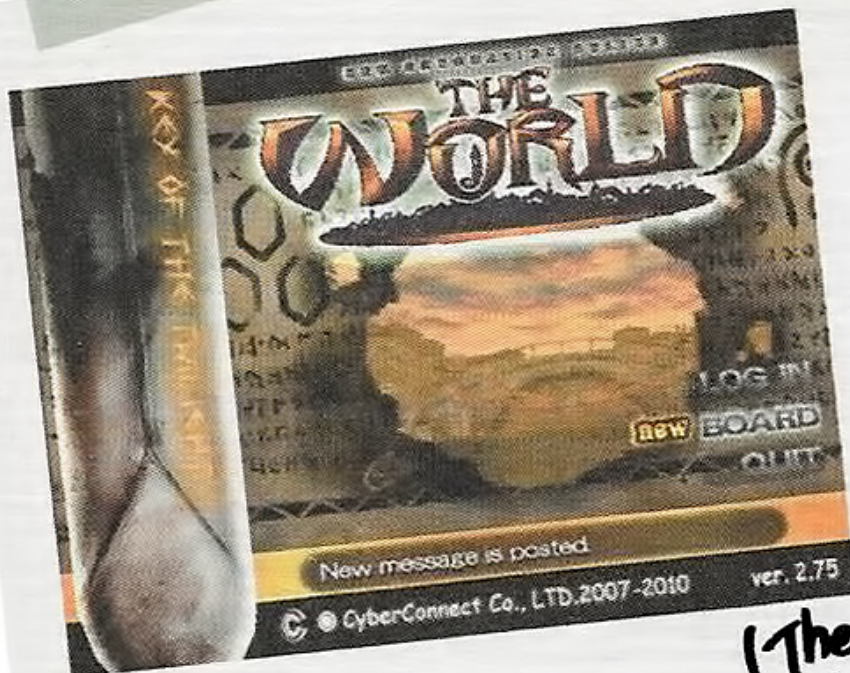

Considering this past encounter with the Wave, it would be impossible to consider the joining of the Wave with the subject “Haseo” to be pure coincidence.

The question remains: what exactly happened to the subject during the time he was an “unreturner?”

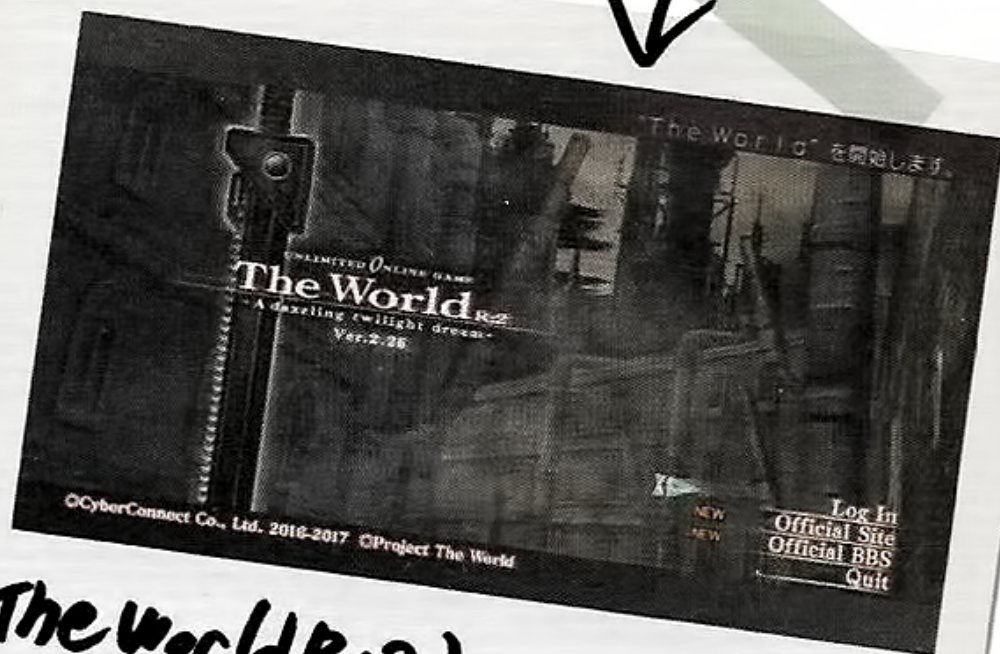

It is hard to obtain witness reports since most of those involved retired from The World right after their involvement's climax, but among those who I was able to interview all told me the same thing:

Sora was involved in the incident surrounding the PC named "Tsukasa," who aided in the birth of Aura.

He was the one who let Aura and the others escape from the system known as Morganna Mode Gone, which commanded the Eight Phases.

Sora. (The World R:1)

Could "she" be the cause?

Subject: 調査経過報告 “Causality”

Sora was attacked by Skeith and fell unconscious.
That was the first time the ability known as “data drain” was observed.

In other words, the 12-year-old Misaki Ryou’s incident triggered a larger chain of causality after his contact with Skeith.

Once the Phases were defeated and their data scattered across the Network, Skeith sensed Misaki’s personal data and latched on when Haseo was born.

Or... could it be that Skeith was the one who called Misaki back to The World?

It was previously thought that the subject received the Morganna Factor due to his contact with Skeith in the past.

However, it does not explain the constantly increasing size of Haseo's PC data.

In order to properly explain the "duplicate phenomenon" I have observed, it is first necessary to examine the incident in which Haseo's PC was data drained by Tri-Edge (Azure Kite).

It is common knowledge now that the legendary PK "Tri-Edge" and Azure Flame Kite are two separate entities, the latter of which had no relation to the series of Lost One incidents.

However, I would like to pose the question:
Why did Azure Flame Kite data drain Haseo?

What follows is simply my own hypothesis, with no basis in actual fact.

So: when Skeith data drained Sora, it received a huge amount of emotional data. To be more specific, it ranged across four main emotions: anger, hatred, sadness, and fear.

These emotions gathered together inside the program known as Skeith, and created a new being: the white Skeith observed in Haseo.

However, in R:1, that personality never manifested. It was data drained by the original Kite before anything came of it, and stored in the Bracelet.

However, the Bracelet was destroyed, and the location of its contents unknown.

Could it be that Azure Kite salvaged the data of that white Skeith?

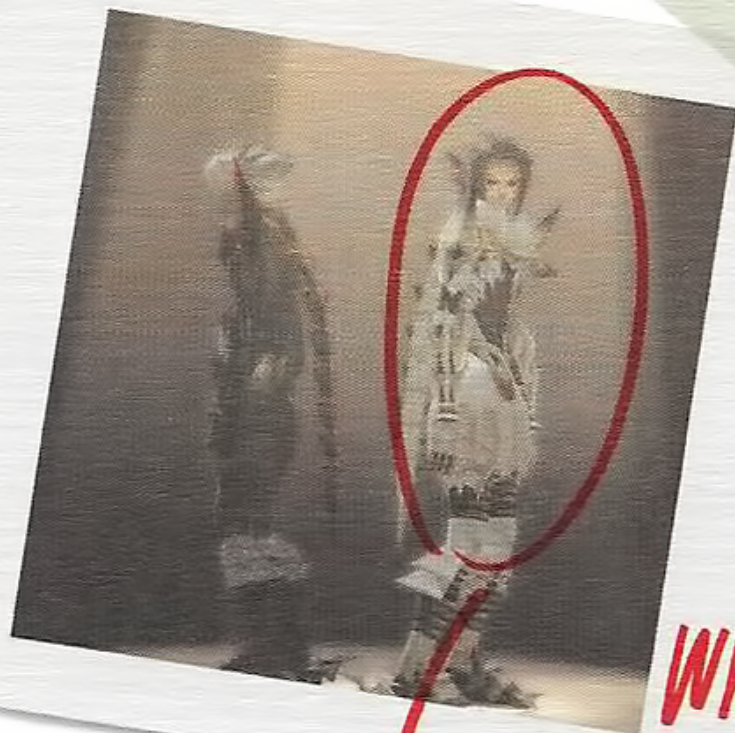

If that's the case, then what purpose did he have in returning it to Misaki Ryou when he was data drained?

If true, then naturally it would be inevitable that the subject Haseo would have to confront the white Skeith within himself.

What happens if he accepts it as part of himself?

Does it take on the role of an observer?

White?
